the Cincinnati Commercial. In Wednesday's aper we find the following article from his pen:

General Margan's personal treatment of prisGeneral Margan's personal treatment of prisoners was uniformly kind, and, if he was present, he would not permit their robberr by his men. Being one of an escort of prisoners sent on to McMinuville, General Margan and staff passed us coming from there, going on to Liberty. He stopped his hore and conversal pleasantly with them, asking how they had been treated by his men. Several of them replied they had been robbed of all their mone; others that they had had their boots taken from them. See The General got very angry, and asked them if either of the paries were with the escort. On a man being printed out to him as one of those that had robbed one of their comrades, the General ordered the officer of the guard to turn him over to the provost guard immediately on getting to McMinnville. He then, out of his own pocket gave each of the robbed party some money. I do not mean to lusinuate for a moment that the General did not go in for the same thing, but then it was on a larger scale, and the United States Government was generally the sufferer. What I mean is, he wends not allow one of the common soldiers to be robbed if he knew it, and when it was brought to his attention, he Invariably reprobated it, and would punish the guilty parties, if they could be pointed out to him.

He was then on his road, preparatory to the fach which took place at Mi'ton in a few days, He had concentrated the most of his force in and about Liberty. I rather think, had he known then, what the result of that fight would have been the world on the ween so eager to go more than half way to meet it.

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE-THE PATTERNA BING RACING MERTINO.-The New York Times gives a glowing account of these races. Ley seem to have received the countenance of the very clite of New York. The Times says: Large as was the attendance Tuesday, the first luto the shade by that o' Wednesday, the whole racing world of New York having app ared to turn out en mase to grace the occasion. As early 18 7 A. M., elegant! appointed equipages, from the modest burger to the dainty four-in-land, began to gait New York by the various terries which lead to the Patterson mod, and long ere 10 o'clock it was througed with vehicles, reminding the English visitors mod of an Epson Derby day than any cent which has come oll on this continent for a long series of years. The Eric Rallond, manmoth as are its transportation resources, was taxed beyond adipravious precedents of a racing season. All ordinary passenger care were soon exhausted, and the company had to call into requisition freight ears, cattle pens, and every other means of transportation that could be improvised under the pressing emergency, sending to distant stations for anything in the shape of a car, and team not being able to supply the eager demands of the impatient populace, hundrels of whom were left behind unable to find means of transportation. Such a rush and such a crowd was never previously seen at any but a Chester Cap or Derby Day in England.

A Fine Scene—On reaching the course the aspect was superb. The grand club stands were densely enowed by elegantly-attired ladies—so densely that masculine numanity had to dispose itself elsewhere as best it could. All the other stands were filled to overflowing, and thousands were content to occupy standing positions in the field, and for a full hour after that aumonice d

No vehicles were admitted on the course until after the steeple-chase, and then there was a rush, the like of which has never previously been witnessed on this continent, for in less than five minutes the entile field was filled with elegantly appointed equipages, and the coup d'ail from the sammit of the grand stand at this time was literally superb.
